Make Our Drama Classroom Feel Like Broadway!

My students need lights, voice amplifiers, and decor to make our classroom feel more like a theater.

My Students

My students primarily come from an apartment or extended stay motel home settings in East Las Vegas. Many are ESL students whose parents speak little or no English. We have such a high percentage of low-income families that our students all receive free breakfast and lunch. We are located in a highly transient neighborhood.

I have students who never read books at home or very rarely play outside with friends.

More than three-quarters of students from low-income households ?

They come to school to learn social skills along with their academics. Despite all of these challenges, these students come to school excited to learn and they are amazing! My job on paper is to teach students drama, but my real job is to teach social skills. I do this through creative play, theater games, puppet shows, and readers theater.

My Project

We use drama at my school for so many things. We use it to teach social skills, We use it to build self esteem. We use it as a creative outlet for our students who have never had that opportunity.

My classroom is important to our students for so many reasons because they can be creative, silly, and take risks....and no one will judge them for it.

I want to make my student's drama classroom to look as special as I can for them. I want the classroom to be decorated with Broadway posters. I want the students to have lights and voice amplifiers for their performances. I want a director's chair and clapboards for when we film their performances. All of these items will make the experience more real to them and not just another class.
